

Climbing Bridges (A Father's song)

By John Victor Ramses © 2011

Inspired by Michael 'Mick' Fox's climbing of the Sydney Harbour Bridge for his children.

Dedicated to every father who ever lost their children through the callous Family Court or False Allegations.

For my daughter, Amanraya....

The day your mom and I said goodbye
Was the first time since you were born I've heard you cry
I held you, I told you, I'd never leave your side
But hearts turn cruel when emotions duel
And unchecked fools collide
Now everything I do is to prove to you
How hard your daddy tried....

I'll climb bridges to show my love for you
Stand a lone against the powers that be unwavering for you
When everything is gone, when I'm on my knees
When they sever me from you
I'll climb bridges to show my love for you

That painful day when justice passed me by
Was the first time since you were born that your daddy cried
I wanna hold you, tell you, I'll never leave your side
But courts are cruel and filled with fools whose callous hearts decide
But everything I do is prove to you
You're my whole life and my pride....

Yes, I'll climb bridges to show my love for you
Stand a lone against the powers that be unwavering for you
When everything is gone, when I'm on my knees
When they sever me from you
I'll climb bridges to show my love for you

*Everything I am is handed into you
From your moment of conception when your parents love was new
Every smile you make, every song you sing, every laugh, I swear it's true
No matter where you go or what you do I'm in every cell of you
You're the continuation of all I am in everything you do.....*

So, I'll climb bridges to show my love for you
Stand a lone against the powers that be unwavering for you
When everything is gone, when I'm on my knees
When they sever me from you
I'll climb bridges to show my love for you

I'll climb bridges and so much more for you.....
